Duf's System of Book-keeping, and Prof. Pinney's Practical French Grammar. LOVEJOY, who mee there works in his

MR. LOVEJOY, who uses these works in his Academy, speaks of them as follows:

I consider Duff's Book-keeping, the best that can be not in the hands of any one, who wishes to become an accomplished accountant. The author does not pretend. to change the general principles of the science—his rules being nearly the same as those which have been in use for the last three hundred years. The chief difference, between his system and others which I have used is this. First. A plainer statement of the rules, 1 00 bringing the science down to the comprehension of the 1 50 humblest capacity. Second. The adaptation of the 3 00 work to all kinds of merchants, wholesale and retail—2 05 also to mechanics. Third. A clearer exposition of the ledger, and especially of the balance account.—
Fourth. A greater variety of oral exercises upon the journal, by which great rapidity of execution is acquired in this particular. Fifth. The author's method of reopening from single to double entry, and of transfering the contents, from single or double entry, books to new ones. Sixth. A less number of errors than usual, there being but two or three trifling ones in the whole

The world has been at work for centuries, to find out an easy and expeditious mode of teaching an Englishman the French language. Prof. Pinney's are decid-4 65 ly the best books of the kind that have hitherto made 2 50 their appearance. The author's plan is wholly conver-6 25 sional. Commencing with simple oral exercises, the 4 00 student is led on by easy progressive steps, until he is made acquainted with the idioms, and with almost every variety and form of expression-everything being 2 60 so admirably managed, that one learns the syntax and the conjugation of the verbe, the spelling, pronuncia-tion, the reading and writing of the language, without being aware of much difficulty or labor.

Prof. P.'s books consist of a large and small grammar, accompanied with a key and French reader. The small one is designed for beginners, the large one for advanced students. The method of instruction is somewhat like that in Arnold's Greek and Latin exercises. 10 Nor does it differ very materially from Ollendoff's. 11 And yet, it is less difficult, and in some respects, superior especially in the syntax of the subjunctive mood. The above works may be had at Turner's North Carolina Book Store, Raleigh.
